THE ANTS OF PANAMA.

Of the many curious shrubs and vines which grow around Panama, there is perhaps none more so than a species of acacia called by the natives cuernito (mimosa cornigera) because the trunk and branches of this shrub are thickly studded with strong, sharp, hollow spines attached in couples at the base like the horns on the head of a buil. The least attempt to handle any part of it, except with the greatest caution, is sure to be attended with some severe punctures by the sharp points of the born shaped spines that everywhere present a general chevaux de frise to the intruder; but this plant is not remarkable alone for the peculiari-ties of its structure. The whole tree is taken possession of by a particular species of small ants of a brownish color, and are called here candelillas, because the sting leaves a sensation like the falling of a spark of fire on the skip. These ants are of so combative a nature that wherever one touches the tree there they all run to punish the offender. These are nev er seen on any tree but this species. When the tree is well grown the horn shaped spines are large, hard, strong and quite hollow withio. Near the point one of each couple of these hollow spines has a round hole, which forms the door to what is a convenient water-proof dwelling place for as many ants as choose to take up their abode in it. When undisturbed the ants are generally moving about over the leaves as if sunning themselves.

There is a species of bird whose eggs are similar to the hedge sparrows in England, that is sure to select this tree to make its nest on. This nest is shaped like a retort with a short neck turned down and made of dried grass and woven. Now whether the bird counts on the protection of his eggs and young from the spiny nature of the tree or the pugnacious character of the ants further observation may determine. One of these nests had two eggs with the young ones about to break through the shell. The ants did not seem to trouble them, but in another nest of the same kind which had been abandoned by the builders, we found in it a great number of the eggs of the ant, which, on being turned out, these ants tried to carry off, as ants generally do In fact we should like to see the ant or other insects that would attempt to lodge anywhere on the mimosa cornigera.

Besides the bird's nest there are two or three kinds of wasps with striped bodies that hang their globular shaped nests to the branches of this shrub, and they also seem to live in harmony with the said auts, and have some reason or other to prefer trees with such formidable spines to one without them. On examining more closely into the nature and formation of these curious looking spines, we find every one to the left, i. e., looking toward the apex of the branch, has a round hole drilled near the apex, and as the two spines communicate at their juncture there is no necessity for making a similar hole in the right hand one. We found ants in most of these hollow organs; some few were furnished with wings, which explains how migrations are made, and new colonies set up in unoccupied trees of this species of mimosa.

Dampier, in his voyage to South America, speaks of these candelillas or stinging ant, but mistakes the nest of the termites or white ants, as belonging to the former. It would certainly be difficult for any traveller entering the woods along the seashore in these countries not to have his attention called to both objects.

BUTCHERS' MEAT. - An interesting light, says an English paper, is thrown on the mysteries of the slaughter house by a memorial just presented by Dr. Yeld, medical officer of health for Sunderland, to the health committee of that town, against the 'blowing and stuffing of meat.' The practice of 'blowing' is described as follows: 'A tube or pipe is thrust under the skin of the meat, and the butcher or dresser then blows the foul air from his own lungs into the cellular tissue of the meat, the effect being that a deceptive appearance of plumpness or fatness is given to the meat, and in many cases it becomes tainted with the smell of rum, tobacco, etc.' This is pleasant for meat consumers, and where ignorance is bliss it is perhaps folly to be wise, and now that public attention has been called to the "blowing' practice, it might perhaps be as well for butchers so far to meet the wishes of the fastidious as to use a pair of bellows for the purpose of giving a graceful embonpoint to the carcasses of animals they kill. Even for their own sakes they will act prudently by discontinuing the use of their lungs in the process. Dr. Yeld also protests against the practice of artificially stuffing the loins or other parts of the animal with fat so as to give a false appearance of corpulence. As a remedy he suggests the imposition of a penalty for every such offense of twenty shillings for the first and forty shillings for each subsequent conviction. His suggestions were adopted unanimously by the health committee at Sunderland, and it is to be hoped that not only in that town but elsewhere artificial fatness will at least be produced by less disagreeable means than those mentioned by Dr. Yeld.

WARLIKE INVENTIONS.-It is stated that the new breech loading field artillery which Krupp has perfected for the German army shoots farther and hits harder than any gun possessed by any other nation. The shell which he has invented is said to be admirably adapted to the gun, and contains an intensely powerful compound, which when discharged bursts into two and a half times as many fragments as an ordipary shell, and deals out two and a half times as much destruction to life. In the meantime England is busy manufacturing death dealing guns. The steamship Devastation, which has twelve inches of solid armor, is to be far surpassed by a future iron-clad, the Inflexible, whose solid plates are to be of the astonishing thickness of twenty-four inches. This monster will be over 11,000 tous, of 8,000 horse-power, and will carry four heavy guns of $1 tons, each carrying shot of about 1,600 pounds. The torpedo system would seem to be the only counter-irritant against these marine leviathans. The celebrated Ericsson is the inventor of a moveable torpedo, which it is claimed is far more effective than most of those inventions, follows its enemy under the water, and has the capacity to blow the heaviest armed ship to pieces. If all this is true, we can afford to let other nations construct big guns and big ships, and rely upon the subaqueous demon to defend our long line of seacoast.

Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Its acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for FORTY YEARS, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

DROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS!

Which may be done with one-fourth the usual GLINES' PATENT SLATE ROOFING PAINT.

AGRNTS WANTED IN EVERY TOWN.

A roof may be covered with a cheap shingle, and by application of this slate be made to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs can be patched and coated, looking much better, and lasting longer than new shingles without the slate, for one than new shingles without the slate, for ONE-THIRD THE COST OF RE-SHING-LING.

The expense of slating new shingles is only about the cost of simply laying them. The Paint is FIRE PROOF against sparks or flying embers, as appears from the fact that Insurance Companies make nearly the SAME TAR: FF AS FOR SLATED ROOFS.

For tin and iron it has no equal, as it expands For tin and iron it has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and never cracks nor scales. For fences it is particularly adapted, as it will not correde in the most exposed places. Roofs covered with Tar Sheathing Felt can be most expense. The Slate made water tight at a small expense. The Slate

EXTREMELY CHEAP! Two gallons will cover a hundred square feet of shingle roof, or over four hundred or tin or iron. Price ready for use is 80 cents per gallon. NO TARIS USEDIN THIS COMPOSITION. On decayed shingles it fills up the holes and pores, hardens them and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. Curled or warped shingles it brings to their place and keeps them there. It fills up all holes in Tin or Felt roofs, and stops the leaks, one coat being equal to five of ordinary paint. The color of the Slate when first applied is dark purple, changing in about a month to a light uniform slate color, and it is,

TO ALL INTENTS AND PURPOSES,
